ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A vehicle navigation system includes a program for providing route guidance to a preset location, determining an arrival at the preset location, and scoring points. Points assigned to the preset location are added to a score variable when the arrival at the preset location is determined and the score is stored in a RAM. With this configuration, the vehicle navigation system has game value in addition to a guidance function.